INTRODUCTION

Message from the Dean

A strong, engaged faculty is the cornerstone of the University. The School of Arts & Letters (SoAL) is fortunate in being home to an outstanding faculty with a rich history of achievement in teaching, scholarship, and service.

The academic vocation has never been more rewarding or more challenging than at this very moment at Middle Georgia State University (MGA). The opportunity for impact on our communities and the lives of our students is immense. But the complexities of our campuses, the vast breadth of our student demographics, and the increase in demands on the professorate make faculty vulnerable to scattered energies and burnout. For this reason, I have asked the faculty to hold in mind two fundamental questions of discernment: (1) What is our work to do? and (2) What is “enough”?

It is my hope that the School of Arts & Letters Full-Time Faculty Handbook will offer pragmatic guidance and practical tools that will help with the critical balancing act of being a successful SoAL faculty member. In particular, the evaluative guidelines and performance rubrics in teaching, service, and scholarship that are articulated in this handbook were created to offer clarity and transparency about expectations for faculty who hope to earn tenure and/or promotion within SoAL. All performance rubrics were developed by faculty-led committees and vetted throughout the entire school.

Finally, the performance guidelines offered in the handbook will prove most useful if deployed in conjunction with rich and ongoing conversations with your academic chairs.

My door is always open should you have any questions or concerns.

Yours,

Mary Wearn

Dean of Arts & Letters

Editorial Note

The School of Arts and Letters is a unit of Middle Georgia State University, which is in turn part of the University System of Georgia (USG) and governed by the Board of Regents (BoR). In the case of discrepancies between MGA or USG policy and this Handbook, MGA or USG policy will always prevail.

ABOUT THE SCHOOL

History

Arts & Letters was formed in July of 2019 as part of Provost Jon Anderson's School-Based Strategy. Dr. Mary McCartin Wearn is the inaugural Dean.

Vision

To be the access hub for exceptional arts and humanities education in our state, to drive cultural development in our region, and to prepare thought leaders for our communities and the creative economy of Georgia.

Mission

To provide broad access to arts and humanities education that promotes creativity, elevates culture, encourages the pursuit of happiness, and prepares intellectually agile citizens to serve our communities and the creative economy of Georgia.

Strategic Plan

Imperative One: Foster Academic, Professional, and Social Agility

- Strategy 1: Build modular curriculum that deconstructs liberal arts/work ready divide
- Strategy 2: Articulate professional pathways for majors
- Strategy 3: Leverage co-curricular organizations/activities

Imperative Two: Become an Engine of Culture on our Campuses and Beyond

- Strategy 1: Build accessible extra- and co-curricular cultural and educational programming
- Strategy 2: Build audience for extra- and co-curricular and educational programming

Imperative Three: Leverage Diversity

- Strategy 1: Support student achievement across the continuum (gen ed to majors; access to honors)
- Strategy 2: Build fall in/fall up academic pipelines that foster retention/progression/attainment

- Strategy 3: Build support systems for scholarship across the continuum

Imperative Four: Build Community

- Strategy 1: Engage K-12 through community-based arts & humanities programming
- Strategy 2: Engage community partners
- Strategy 3: Foster a faculty culture that supports engagement and retention
- Strategy 4: Anchor in place on the campuses

Departments

The School of Arts and Letters is composed of three departments:

- Department of English – Chair, Dr. Benita Muth
- Department of History – Chair, Dr. Matt Zimmerman
- Department of Media, Culture, & the Arts – Chair, Dr. Sheree' Keith

Academic Programs

Department of English

ADMINISTRATIVE GUIDELINES

Faculty should familiarize themselves with administrative policies in the Middle Georgia State University Faculty Handbook, as well as those in manuals and handbooks listed on Page 4. For specific administrative guidelines, see the MGA Faculty Handbook, Section 4 (Faculty Employment Policies), Section 5 (Faculty Rights and Responsibilities), and Section 6 (General Personnel Policies). The following information clarifies or amplifies institutional policy as specifically applicable to the School of Arts & Letters.

Communications

Faculty are expected to adhere to standard MGA University practices for setting up voicemail, formatting email signatures, and maintaining a directory profile. Faculty should provide current (and preferred) contact information for students, as well as main office location with office hours, on syllabi.

Voicemail

Faculty should set up voicemail on their office phones. The voicemail message should be kept current, and faculty should regularly check voicemail messages.

Email Signatures

Faculty should have an email signature with current contact information. Faculty should use MarComm guidelines and adhere to institutional branding when setting up email signature. For more information, see <https://www.mga.edu/marketing-communications/email-signature-instructions.php>

Directory Profile

Faculty should regularly update their profile in the institutional directory. Profiles may be updated at this link <https://www.mga.edu/directory/me/index.php>

SoAL Events

Faculty who organize and host SoAL-sponsored events should complete a SoAL Calendar Event Form (<https://www.mga.edu/arts-letters/events/event-calendar.php>) so that the event can be included on SoAL's school-wide Events Calendar. The link to the form is at the top of the SoAL calendar page. Faculty should check dates on the school-wide calendar in advance of scheduling an event in order to avoid double booking events on the same date. Information about events should be posted well in advance of the event to allow time to build audience.

Additionally, faculty planning and hosting events should strictly meet deadlines for posting events on the SoAL calendar. The SoAL Calendar of Events will be published each semester, prior to the beginning of classes. Faculty who plan and host events are primarily responsible for publicizing their event and building audience. SoAL's Associate Dean and Administrative Assistant are available to assist, specifically in posting events on the Student Affairs platform, "Presence" and on SoAL social media platforms.

INSTRUCTIONAL GUIDELINES

Faculty should familiarize themselves with instructional policies in the Middle Georgia State University Handbook, as well as those in manuals and handbooks listed on Page 4. For specific instructional policies regarding office hours, syllabi, textbooks, grades, etc., please see Section 5 of the MGA Faculty Handbook (Faculty Rights and Responsibilities), with focus on Section 5.04 (Faculty Instructional Policies). The following information clarifies or amplifies Instructional Guidelines within the School of Arts & Letters.

New Faculty

New full-time Faculty in SoAL will be on-boarded through Human Resources. Within SoAL, new faculty may receive additional training in the online Learning Management System (Brightspace/ D2L) from MGA's Center for Excellence in Teaching & Learning (<https://www.mga.edu/center-excellence-teaching-learning/index.php>). New Faculty will also be assigned to a faculty mentor who will help the new faculty member transition to the University and become familiar USG/ MGA policies and procedures. All new faculty members will be encouraged to engage in faculty development opportunities, especially those offered by MGA, and they will be observed at least once by their mentor and/or Department Chair teaching a class in their first semester prior to the first annual evaluation process.

Syllabi

All syllabi in the School of Arts & Letters must include specific information as required by MGA policy. Faculty should check their syllabi every semester to ensure that items on the syllabus checklist are included (MGA Faculty Handbook, 5.04.02). The checklist is available here <https://www.mga.edu/faculty-affairs/university-syllabus.php>

Additionally, in support the USG Mindset Growth initiative (as part of the overall Momentum Approach strategy), SoAL faculty should include the following statement on all SoAL syllabi:

The School of Arts & Letters encourages you to engage in our numerous co-curricular events and activities each semester, including readings, lectures, discussions, and performances. We also encourage you to seek academic support from the Writing Centers and other academic support centers on our campuses. Broadening your academic experience and seeking tutoring support when necessary can help you adopt a “growth mindset” instead of a “fixed mindset.”

Faculty Absence from Class

Per the MGA Faculty Handbook, Faculty members are expected to meet punctually all regularly scheduled sessions of their face-to-face classes. Faculty members who must miss one or more of their class sessions must arrange with their chair to have the class covered (MGA Faculty Handbook, 5.04.06).

Faculty who are absent from class due to illness, must also report their absence via One USG Connect (MGA Faculty Handbook, 6.04.02).

Faculty who plan on being absent from class due to professional travel must receive prior approval to travel whether reimbursed or not (MGA Faculty Handbook, 5.08).

Student Absence and Faculty Initiated Withdrawal

Per the MGA Faculty Handbook, Faculty are required to include a statement about attendance policy and procedures in their syllabi, and they must maintain attendance records for all face-to-face and distance education classes (MGA Faculty Handbook, 5.04.05).

Per MGA's catalog, faculty may initiate a course withdrawal for a student who has excessive absences as defined by the University's attendance policy. Specifically, when students have a total number of absences more than twice the number of class meetings per week - faculty have the right to assign a failing grade but may instead initiate a withdrawal if deemed appropriate. The process of faculty-initiated withdrawal will include the following steps within the School of Arts & Letters:

- Faculty considering initiating withdrawal must contact the student via email and D2L/Brightspace at least once before the student has missed two weeks of classes in a sixteen week session.¹ The Department Chair should be copied on the email, and the message must cite attendance policy and warn the student that he/she is at risk of being withdrawn from the class.
- Faculty who decide to initiate withdrawal after a student has missed two weeks of classes in a sixteen week session,¹ must then fill out the Faculty Initiated

¹ All attendance calculations are "prorated" depending on session structure. For a regular sixteen week class, faculty cannot initiate withdrawal until after a student misses two full weeks of class. For an eight week class, faculty cannot initiate withdrawal until after a student misses one full week of class. Technically, a faculty member may initiate withdrawal after a student misses one day of class in a four week session, but good judgment and sound communication should be used in these cases.

Withdrawal Form

(https://www.mga.edu/registrar/docs/Withdrawals_by_Instructor.pdf), making sure to include the last date of attendance.

- Faculty must forward the Faculty Initiated Withdrawal Form to the student, the Department Chair, and the Associate Dean via email giving notification that the withdrawal process has been initiated. The student should also be informed via D2L/Brightspace.
- The Associate Dean will work with MGA Academic Advising for final outreach to the student before withdrawal is authorized by the Chair.

Grades and Deadlines

Per MGA's policy supporting the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), SoAL faculty should communicate course progress (test scores, assignment grades, etc.) to individual students using the D2L/Brightspace Learning Management System. Specifically, SoAL faculty should employ the D2L/Brightspace Gradebook and maintain a running average of students' grades. MGA's Center for Excellence in Teaching & Learning can provide resources for setting up the D2L/Brightspace Gradebook:

<https://www.mga.edu/center-excellence-teaching-learning/index.php>

Midterm and Final Grades for all sessions must be submitted in SWORDS on time per the Registrar's Office published deadlines. All faculty are required to submit the last date of attendance (LDA) for any "I" and "F" grades, and faculty in online courses must submit proof of LDA. For faculty teaching Dual Enrolled students, a numerical grade should be entered in the "Hours Attended" column in SWORDS. Further resources and tutorials for entering grades can be found here <https://www.mga.edu/registrar/faculty-resources/index.php>

Faculty are expected to meet all required deadlines: no-show reporting, ordering textbooks, entering grades, posting syllabi and office hours, completing mandatory training, providing assessment data, and other activities that are time-sensitive. A pattern of missed required deadlines—especially those that negatively impact students—will be reflected on faculty's annual evaluations.

Advising

New tenure-track faculty are exempt from advising in the first year. Thereafter, tenure-track faculty are expected to engage in mentoring and academic advising of majors. Newly admitted, transfer, and returning students under 60 semester hours will be advised by MGA Academic Advising, with specific Professional Advisors assigned to the School of Arts & Letters (Ms. Joanna Frelich and Ms. Terri Reckart in Macon, and Mr. Colby Long in Cochran). During that time, students are assigned in Banner to a Faculty Mentor, who serves as a point of contact for students in order to provide advice and support as the student works through core classes and prepares for upper level work. At 60 semester hours, majors are transferred to their Faculty Mentors who will, thereafter, serve as Faculty Advisors.

Faculty Advisors in each department should maintain a list of advisees and should assist majors in planning schedules and staying on track for graduation. Faculty Advisors are responsible for contacting their advisees to come in for advising appointments and for reminding students about registration deadlines.

Faculty Advisors, with appropriate assistance from respective Chairs and Program Coordinators, should update an advisee's progression status in MyDegree after advising sessions. Faculty advisors should ensure that advisees are registered by forwarding schedules to respective departmental Administrative Assistants, to the SoAL Administrative Assistant, or to the Associate Dean. If an advisee has opted out of attending MGA, information should be sent to the Associate Dean for updating in Banner.

Retention and Progression

In line with MGA's adherence to initiatives such as Momentum Year (including "Growth Mindset"), the School of Arts & Letters is committed to Student Success and Student Engagement. SoAL encourages faculty to develop instructional and advising strategies to help students persist and succeed in their courses. Faculty are encouraged to share strategies with one another and to investigate innovative methods of instruction and advising through faculty development opportunities.

Online Instruction Best Practices

For online course development, faculty are encouraged to review the Quality Matters Higher Education Rubric that outlines standards for fully-developed online course:

<https://www.qualitymatters.org/sites/default/files/PDFs/StandardsfromtheQMHigherEducationRubric.pdf>

MGA Online

The School of Arts & Letters offers the following fully online programs through its online campus, MGA Online: B.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies; B.A. in Media and Communication;

B.A. in English; Graduate Certificate in Technical and Professional Writing; Graduate Certificate in Creative Writing; Graduate Certificate in Teaching College Writing; Graduate Certificate in Strategic Business Communication; M.A. in Technical and Professional Writing; and M.A. in Public Relations. All of SoAL's fully online courses will utilize the MGA Online Template in order to maintain consistency through online course offerings across the institution.

Workload

Please see the MGA Faculty Handbook (Section 5.03) for the complete and official workload policy. Lecturers should also see MGA Faculty Handbook, Section 4.02.02.3c. Within the School of Arts & Letters, faculty who do not have a full teaching load in a given semester due to class enrollment will be reassigned to other duties such as administrative projects, retention initiatives, or student support.

FACULTY PERFORMANCE

Faculty should familiarize themselves with faculty performance policies in the Middle Georgia State University Handbook, as well as those in manuals and handbooks listed on Page 4. For specific faculty performance policies, see the MGA Faculty Handbook, Section 4.05: Annual Evaluation (4.05.02.2), Promotion (4.05.02.2, 4.05.02.4 and 4.06), Tenure (4.05.02.2, 4.05.02.4 and 4.07), and Post-Tenure Review (4.05.02.5 and 4.07.03).

Per MGA Faculty Handbook, Section 4.05.02.2 Annual Evaluation, “the evaluation of faculty performance assumes consistent weighting” in performance areas “as appropriate to their faculty rank.”

Tenured and tenure-track faculty at Middle Georgia State University are evaluated on their yearly performance in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and service. Per April 23, 2023 memo from President Blake to Faculty Senate, by default, teaching constitutes 60% of the annual evaluation, scholarship comprises 20%, and service makes up the final 20%. Faculty should state specific goals for the evaluation of their performance in relation to these categories. Faculty members may petition their Chair and Dean to adjust the evaluative weight of each of these categories for performance evaluation in the upcoming year to reflect their anticipated work more accurately within the ranges below. Deans must approve or deny proposed changes, and teaching workloads are not subject to change. Deans will report evaluative weight adjustments annually to the Assistant Provost of Faculty Development.

Teaching: 50-70%

Scholarship: 10-30%

Service: 10-30%

For Lecturers, the weighting in performance is 100% in teaching.

The following information clarifies or amplifies faculty performance guidelines within the School of Arts & Letters.

Evaluation of Teaching for Lecturers and Tenure-Track Faculty

SoAL is committed to excellence in teaching. All full-time faculty members will be evaluated across four distinct teaching categories on an annual basis and during promotion reviews (for Lecturers) and during tenure and promotion reviews (for tenure-track faculty). The quality indicators in the chart below provide sample means of demonstrating effective performance. Lists are neither prescriptive nor exhaustive and all full-time faculty are free to provide alternative/additional evidence during evaluation periods.

SoAL supports the use of high-impact practices as defined by the American Association of Colleges and Universities to promote active learning in the classroom. Definitions and examples of active learning and high impact practices can be found in the Faculty Performance Appendix.

Note: The University System of Georgia requires that a summary of Course Experience Feedback Surveys be included to document teaching effectiveness in the evaluation process.

Evaluation of Service for Tenure-Track Faculty

SoAL's definition and evaluation of service to the Department, School, or University reflects a strong commitment to student engagement and shared culture. All Tenure-track faculty members will be evaluated across three distinct Tier 1 service categories on an annual basis and during tenure and promotion reviews. All Tenure-track faculty must also have a record of Tier 2 Service annually and for tenure and promotion. Lecturers are not evaluated on service.

Tier 1 Service Categories	Examples
1. Committee Work and Administrative Assignments	Department, School, University, Ad hoc Committees, Faculty Senate, or committees and boards of the Senate. Appointments to USG committees or work groups. Appointment to specialized positions or projects such as Provost's Fellows, Core Fellows, etc. Administrative assignments such as Program Coordinator or Writing Center Directors.
2. Student Success: Student engagement, support, and/or recruitment	Student Engagement RSO Volunteering, including supporting RSO events, serving as official RSO advisor, etc. Developing or assisting with student activities and/or programs Co-Curricular support of student activities outside the classroom Development or support of internships and/or other experiential learning opportunities. Student Support (Retention, Progression, & Graduation) Advising and mentoring Student support projects and programs such as tutoring at the writing center; participating in mindset or other student workshops, etc. Call campaigns Program round-up activities Recruitment Attending open houses K-12 Outreach; work that engages K12 students on or off campus Coordinating or judging pre-collegiate competitions held on or off campus.
3. Culture Building	Arranging scholarly lectures, artistic performances or readings, or other cultural activities for the institution such as events celebrating Black history, women's history, Hispanic heritage month, etc. Arranging or providing professional development opportunities for the institution. Supporting or building productive external partnerships.

Evaluation of Scholarship for Tenure-Track Faculty

In the School of Arts & Letters, the definition of scholarship aligns with Boyer's model¹ (scholarship of discovery, teaching, application, and integration) and Shulman's criteria² for characteristics of scholarship. The School of Arts & Letters, for example, recognizes the value of traditional research in one's discipline, as well as research within the scope of teaching and learning. The School of Arts & Letters also recognizes the scholarly nature of creative work in the literary, visual, and performing arts. In all cases, guiding principles for defining scholarship in the School of Arts and Letters are as follows:

The scholarly process should involve stages:

- Defining a scope or purpose for the project
- Reviewing existing scholarship in the field
- Articulating a methodology or theoretical framework and its application to the project.

The completed scholarly work should meet the following criteria:

- The work is significant to the field (impacts the field or adds knowledge to the field)
- The work is peer-reviewed
- The work is publicly presented, performed, and/or published

¹ Ernest L. Boyer, Scholarship Reconsidered: Priorities of the Professoriate, (Princeton, New Jersey: Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, 1990)

² Lee. S. Schulman, "Teaching as Community Property: Putting an End to Pedagogical Solitude," Change (Nov./ Dec. 1993): 6-7.

The tiered examples of scholarship in the chart that follows represent activities that will generally earn a "meets" or "exceeds" rating on the faculty annual evaluation for tenure-track faculty. These examples of scholarship are not exhaustive, and the faculty member may document other scholarly activities based on guiding principles in defining scholarship within the School of Arts & Letters. Close consultation with the Chair and Dean is recommended for scholarly projects not listed below.

It is ultimately the responsibility of the faculty to provide adequate evidence of the quality and scholarly nature of their research or creative work—especially at the third year review and during tenure and promotion process. A list of possible documentation is provided in the chart below, but it is not exhaustive. In order to document accomplishment in the area of scholarship for tenure and promotion, there should be significant alignment between annual "Goals for Scholarship" in the faculty self-evaluation and scholarly output. Lecturers are not evaluated on scholarship.

Annual Evaluation Metrics in Scholarship

SoAL Scholarship evaluation follows the Boyer model and is therefore agnostic to whether research takes the form of the scholarship of discovery, teaching, application, or integration. Activity that focuses on student success and/or the scholarship of teaching and learning should also be considered in annual evaluation of faculty's engagement in student success and during tenure, promotion, and post tenure review evaluation.

Evaluation of Student Success for Lecturers and Tenure-Track Faculty

In each evaluation cycle and at times of promotion, tenure, and post tenure review, full time faculty will be evaluated on student success engagement. For tenure-track faculty, student success metrics are derived from faculty members' student success metrics which are embedded in the teaching, service, and scholarship rubrics on pages 19-37 of this handbook. For lecturers, student success metrics are derived from the teaching rubric alone.

Examples of student success activities are provided in the teaching, service, and scholarship portion of this handbook and are further articulated in the Faculty Performance Appendix at the end of this handbook.

Performance Rubric by Student Success Category

Note: Tenure-track faculty members are expected to be engaged in Student Success in the Teaching Arena every year. However, there is no expectation that SoAL tenure-track faculty members will participate in multiple categories of student success each year. Tenure-track faculty can meet or exceed expectation in student success for the purposes of annual evaluation by focusing on a single category. However, there is an expectation that faculty will participate in at least two categories of Student Success engagement by the time they go up for tenure and promotion. Lecturers are only evaluated for student success in the Teaching Arena.

Faculty Performance Appendix

This appendix provides additional definitions and examples related to teaching and student success to provide additional guidance and support to faculty in completing their self-evaluation. This is a limited collection of examples.

MGA High Impact Practices - Examples with Definitions

Capstone

Capstone courses are culminating experiences that require students nearing the end of their learning pathway to create a project that integrates and applies what they've learned over the course of the program of study. The project might be a research paper, a performance, a portfolio of "best work," or an exhibit of artwork. Capstones are offered both in departmental programs and in general education. (Source: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>) ePortfolio

ePortfolios enable students to electronically collect their work over time, reflect upon their personal and academic growth, and then share selected items with others, such as professors, advisors, and potential employers. Because collection over time is a key element of the ePortfolio process, employing ePortfolios in collaboration with other high-impact practices provides opportunities for students to make connections between various educational experiences. (Source: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>)

Global Learning

Global learning involves study abroad, study away or other learning experiences for students that enrich student learning through course content, first-hand experiential learning, and critical reflection. A range of avenues are pursued for exploring diversity, world cultures, and difficult questions and issues.

Students apply what they are learning in a real-world setting and reflect on their experiences as part of the course requirements. (Source: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>)

Service Learning

In service learning courses, students [have] direct experience with issues they are studying in the curriculum and with ongoing efforts to analyze and solve problems in the community. A key element is the opportunity students have to both apply what they are learning in real-world settings and reflect in a classroom setting on their service learning experiences.

(Source: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>)

Undergraduate Research

Undergraduate research conducted by students involves inquiry or investigation that makes an original intellectual, scholarly or creative contribution to the discipline for which the student receives academic credit. (Adapted from: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>)

Work-Based Learning

Work-based Learning is a credit-bearing experience that integrates knowledge and theory learned in the classroom with practical application and skills development in a professional setting to include: internships, practicums, clinicals, co-ops and similar experiences. Work-based learning within a major field of study gives students the opportunity to participate in applied learning and make connections in professional fields students are considering for career paths. In work-based learning, employers work closely with students to introduce them to the profession, provide guidance, and evaluate students for possible employment. (NACE, 2011).

Collaborative Assignments and Projects

Collaborative learning combines two key goals: learning to work and solve problems in the company of others and sharpening one's own understanding by listening seriously to the insights of others, especially those with different backgrounds and life experiences. Approaches range from study groups within a course, to team-based assignments and writing, to cooperative projects and research. (www.aacu.org)

Common Intellectual Experience

The older idea of a "core" curriculum has evolved into a variety of modern forms, such as a set of required common courses or a vertically organized general education program that includes advanced integrative studies and/or required participation in a learning community. These programs often combine broad themes—e.g., technology and society, global interdependence—with a variety of curricular and cocurricular options for students. (www.aacu.org)

First-Year Experience

First-year seminars bring small groups of students together with faculty or staff on a regular basis to engage in critical inquiry, frequent writing, information literacy, collaborative learning, and other skills that develop students' intellectual and practical competencies. First-year seminars engage students in the examination of cutting-edge questions. (Source: <https://www.aacu.org/leap/hips>)

Learning Communities

The key goals for learning communities are to encourage integration of learning across courses and to involve students with "big questions" that matter beyond the classroom. Students take two or more linked courses as a group and work closely with one another and with their professors. Many learning communities explore a common topic and/or common readings through the lenses of different disciplines. Some deliberately link "liberal arts" and "professional courses"; others feature service learning. (www.aacu.org)

Writing Intensive Courses

These courses emphasize writing at all levels of instruction and across the curriculum, including final-year projects. Students are encouraged to produce and revise various forms of writing for different audiences in different disciplines. The effectiveness of this repeated practice "across the curriculum" has led to parallel efforts in such areas as quantitative reasoning, oral communication, information literacy, and, on some campuses, ethical inquiry.
